BODY PARTS

God is very wonderful, in his creation. He created people with a lot of care and love. This is shown by all the useful and necessary parts that he put on their bodies.

On the head, we find the eyes, ears, nose, mouth, teeth, cheeks and others. The nose enables us to smell, the eyes to see, the ears to hear and the mouth to talk and eat.

As you continue downwards, there is the neck, chest, stomach, back, waist, arms, legs and many others. The legs make us move from one place to another.

They also enable footballers to kick the ball. The arms are used to do a lot of activities. The fingers make us able to hold pencils and write or draw.

The uses are very many. However, we need to look after all the body parts in the best way possible because God created them with a purpose. If you mishandle them, they can be damaged. Imagine if you lost any or all of them. What shape would you be or what would you be able to do for yourself?

Good News

It's good news again
We are soon getting rain.
Gone will be the dust
Gone will be the heat

Farmers should prepare
To plant all their crops
Maize, beans, soya, millet
For food and to sell

All the plants
Which have dried
Are going to turn green
Like grass

The wells, lakes, streams,
Will be filled with water
For animals to drink
And for people to use at home
This is good news.

SECTION B

51. Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

MUSIRU THE BADLY BEHAVED BOY

Towards the end of second term, children of Namalo Academy started misbehaving. The girls started abusing their friends and taking away their pens, pencils and books. The head teacher learnt of it. He arrested some of them and called their parents. They were suspended from school for two weeks.

Although the girls were known to be, the boys were worse. They fought and beat everyone in addition to injuring the friends. One boy named Musiru beat a Primary Four boy and injured his eye. His friends Chuma and Tema ran after him but failed to get him. He ran fast enough because he was older than the two boys.

When the villagers saw him, they made a lot of noise. He decided to go back where he was coming from. A cyclist knocked him as he was trying to run across the road. He got a fracture and started crying in pain. Everyone left him until a Good Samaritan found him and gave him first aid.

Later, the Samaritan asked him if he knew his parent's telephone number. Fortunately, Musiru knew his father's number. His father was called and he came immediately. He thanked the Good Samaritan and gave him fifty thousand shillings. They lifted Musiru and put him in the car. His father drove him to the hospital to get treatment. He apologized to his father although he was in great pain.

When he was on the hospital bed, the police came looking for him. His father talked to them and they went away. Musiru learnt a lesson.

The strength of sorry
Sorry is a simple word,
When I make a mistake
When something goes wrong
Sometimes it is my mistake
and sometimes it is not
But someone will forgive me
After a short word, sorry

Sorry brings joy
Sorry, makes me feel good
I am sorry
For the wrong I have done
When I am forgiven
I feel better
And life goes on
For as long as I am really sorry.

Jane's Ambition.

Jane had always wanted to be a nurse or a pilot. Ever since her childhood , she had always imitated a nurse taking care of the sick when she played with her sister. Jane would always act the role of a nurse while her sister always wanted to be a teacher or a police officer.

Now at the University of Nairobi, Jane is in her second year of study. She is studying medicine as she wants to be a doctor. Her wish to be a nurse has almost come true. Her job will be diagnosing the sicknesses that people are suffering from and instructing the nurses on how to take care of the sick.

Jane's sister, Ruth was not as lucky as Jane was. She failed her exams and is now married to a mason. Ruth's husband is Anthony. His job involves a lot of manual work as he has to arrange bricks, mix the sand and build houses according to plan.

Sometimes Anthony works with electricians to install electrical power in a new house or repairing old ones. His pay is not enough to support his family.

Jane atleast has the hope of earning enough money to support herself and her ailing mother when she completes her studies at the University. She won't be like some lazy people do when they refuse to work hard in their studies.

51. Read the passage below and answer the questions in full sentences.

Once upon a time, there lived an old called Musana. He lived at the shores of Lake Kyoga. He was a fisherman and he had three sons and two daughters.

They depended on fishing and grew a few crops like maize, sweet potatoes and groundnuts. Wabwire, the first born didn't go to school. He used to help his father in fishing and they could eat fish and sell some to buy other domestic requirements like salt and soap.

One day, Wabwire talked to his father about the education of his siblings. He told the father that without education, their life style would never change. The father picked on the idea and his siblings started school at Nyapende Primary School. They worked so hard that all of them studied up to university.

Nankya, the last born bought her father a house when she got a job at Mukwano Industry. The rest of the family members were grateful to Wabwire who brought the idea. Today, this family lives happily and believes without hard work and education, life can never be the best.

51. Read the story below and answer the questions that follow in full sentences.

Leila is an orphan in Ndeeba. She dropped out of school when she was in Primary Six at Nakasero Primary School because she couldn't get school fees for herself. Leila did not sit at home. She moved around the city and saw many beautiful things made by people out of local materials.

She sat down one Saturday and thought about what she could do to herself. Eventually, she got an idea of picking local materials like maize cobs, bean seeds and bottle tops which were littered all over. She started making things like sandals from maize cobs, necklaces from bean seeds and door mats from bottle tops.

Leila worked so hard that people admired what she made. They started buying her finished goods. Leila has not only improved the cleanliness of the area but has so far trained twenty girls from her area. The L.C.I, Mr. Lumu has praised her so much for her creativity.

Leila thanks God so much for the brain and beautiful hands given to her. If it wasn't God, she would be a wasted girl. She continues to talk to all other children to trust in God and believe in themselves other than begging on the streets.

LOOKING AFTER GOATS

Mr. Kidega has many goats. Wilobo, his son looks after them. Every day, at six O'clock in the morning, Wilobo leaves his warm bed, puts on his clothes, brushes his teeth and takes breakfast. Then he opens the door of the shed where the goats live. They run out to look for grass and other things to eat.

Goats run very fast and Wilobo has to make sure that they do not eat the vegetables and maize of his father and friends. Wilobo has also to stop the goats walking on the road to protect them against being knocked by cars.

Every day at midday, Wilobo rests in the shade of a tree and takes his lunch. Some days, he eats maize or jack fruits.

In the evening, he brings the goats back home. He carefully counts them one by one as they go into their shed. One, two, three, four until he reaches twenty. When they are all in their shed, he closes the door. He then takes his supper and goes to bed.

Mary woke up at six o'clock on Saturday. She wanted to help her mother at home. She brushed her teeth first and then went to have a bath. She put on clean clothes and combed her hair.

She went to the kitchen and helped her mother to cook breakfast. "Good morning Mary", said her mother. "Good morning mother", Mary replied. "Please, get me some clean water from the pot and some salt from the tin on the shelf", asked Mary's mother. "Yes mother", Mary replied.

Mary saw that there were dirty plates in the sink. She asked her mother if she could wash them. "Yes, Mary, wash the dishes with soap and water and wipe them dry using a clean cloth".

Mary's mother then went outside and started washing the clothes while the breakfast cooked over the fire. She carried the washed clothes in a basket and hung them on a line.

The breakfast was ready. Mary's mother asked her to take the plates and spoons out of the cupboard and lay them on the table. Mary's mother said to her, "You are a very good girl".

SECTION B

51. Read the passage below and answer the questions about it in full sentences.

THE STORM

It was the beginning of a rainy season. That afternoon, we had experienced very bad weather in our village, Kiwenda. At first, there was strong wind which blew down crops and trees, unroofed houses and covered the whole place with dust. Shortly afterwards, hailstones started falling from the sky. That was followed by a heavy rain with a storm. What a storm it was!

The rain lasted six hours and a lot of property was destroyed. Animals, too, got confused. The young ones lost their mothers as they were running to save their lives. Puppies followed cows, calves followed lions, ducklings followed pigs, piglets followed snakes, snakelets followed dogs and everything was in total confusion.

Later when the rain stopped, the young ones found their right mothers. People started repairing what was damaged and life came back to normal in Kiwenda.

THE TIME TABLE

When I go to school
Whatever I do is timed,
I go to the assembly daily,
Prayers begin my day,
Other activities then follow,
Planned and timed hour by hour.

Before each lesson begins,
The bell rings ring ring,
Teachers move in and out,
Changing classes, changing subjects
Doing everything planned for me.

Whenever the bell rings,
I buy meat pies at break time,
Whenever it is lunch time
Food is served in plenty,
Food is served on time
A timetable is something fine

I ALWAYS KILL SEVEN

There lived an old man, Kiteke, in Suku valley. He lived alone because he didn't have children and a wife. In his compound, there was a mango tree which bore tasty fruits. Many people wanted to steal his mangoes but they were afraid of the old man. Every morning, he went and gathered mangoes to eat. What disturbed him were the flies that came to the mangoes. To chase them away, he always wiped his T-shirt to kill them and then counted them. Whenever he counted, there were seven dead flies. So he wrote on his T-shirt: I always kill seven.

On day, seven giants came to kill him so that they could take his house and the mangoes. They removed his shirt and tied his hands. But one of the giants was able to read the words on the shirt. He whispered to the rest of the giants.

They were surprised! When they counted themselves, they were the number the old man always killed. One by one, they disappeared. The old man survived being killed.

MY HOME

A place I love most
Where I feel comfortable and secure
Where I am free to do everything I want
Oh! What a wonderful place!

A place one wouldn't love to leave
Not even an hour or a second
But many things make us leave it
Going for studies, for work
In order to earn a living.

A place I would love to offer,
To all the homeless, the orphans,
If I had enough money,
If I had a voice to speak,
For them in parliament.

The place, God had given freely,
To every living creature
But again snatched

By heartless and merciless people
Government protect each creature's home
Because it is a right to have a home.
Douglas White (P.4 Indigo)
