THE BELOVED

Diko,
Of light skin, of smooth hair and long;
Her smell is sweet and gentle
She never stinks of fish
She never breathes sweat
Like gatherers of dry wood.
She has no bald patch on her head
Like those who carry heavy loads.
Her teeth are white
Her eyes are like
Those of a new born fawn
That delights in the milk that flows for the first time from the antelopes udder.
Neither her heel nor her palm
Are rough; but sweet to touch
Like liver; or better still
The fluffy down of kapok
